Introduction

A Private Investigator or Private Detective (often shortened to PI or Private Eye) is a person who is available for hire to investigate any person or matter. He is an undercover agent. He works unobtrusively to gather evidence in civil or criminal cases. He is not an official person, but can assist official enquiry.

With growing crime rate and criminal tendencies, Security is big issue. Not only business, and industry, even private people are looking for personal security professionals. Body guards, security professional and Detectives are complimentary professions.

Today there are almost 400 detective agencies and the 1000 security agencies in India. They are mostly run by Ex-servicemen. Previously there were no courses or formal training available. Now slowly the scenario is changing. Courses are available in classes, distance learning as well as online.

Some History

In India we have references to “Gupt chars”, spies retained by the kings to report on all kind if issues. The most (in) famous being report about Sita which made Ram abandon her.

Then Chanakya has strongly advocated employing such people so that the king is always aware of what is happening in his kingdom.

International Espionage is an extension of this theme. The governments (Kingdoms) are gathering intelligence reports about their neighbors, friends and foes to be on alert. CBI and FBI of USA are quite famous and inspirational for many novels. James Bond 007 is a fictional celebrity.

Fictionally Sherlock Holmes did a lot to spread awareness about private investigators.

The modern Era of Private detectives was started in 1833 by Eugène François Vidocq, a French soldier. He was supposed to be a criminal. He founded the first known private detective agency, Le bureau des renseignements (Office of Intelligence) and, again, hired ex-cons. The classic case of a diamond cutting a diamond!
Vidocq is credited with having introduced record-keeping, criminology and ballistics to criminal investigation. He made the first plaster casts of shoe impressions. He created indelible ink and unalterable bond paper with his printing company. Read More Another pioneering agency was established in 1850 by Allan Pinkerton in USA, who had foiled a plot to assassinate then President-Elect Abraham Lincoln.

He had established Ethical rules for agents which are still followed. In fact the term “private eye” is from the Pinkerton agency’s logo, an eye surrounded with the words “We Never Sleep”

Since then it became an established career in west. Guidelines and laws have been established to register and regularize the agents. A person needs to have a valid license to practice the trade.

Unlike west, so far (Nov. 2011) a detective does not need a license to practice in India. Private Investigator Bill is pending in Indian Parliament since 2007. Once it is passed, all detective professionals, and agencies will have to be registered and licensed.

This is a robust growing industry, doing business of Rs. 5000Crores per annum approximately. It has a big scope of fraud, and is in urgent need of regulations.
Areas of Investigation

All of the followings come under the job:

Surveillance

Family disputes- regarding wills and ownership of property,

Matrimonial – background check on prospective Bride or Groom, spouse infidelity, evidence for divorce, custody of children

Industrial – Problems with theft, fraud and espionage.

Corporate - companies can hire private detectives for finding information about rival companies in matters like submission of tenders, infringement of copyrights.

Employee details - before and after employment.

Obtaining and furnish information related to the identity, habits, business, occupation, knowledge, movement, location, affiliations, associations, transactions, acts, reputation, or character of a person, group or company.

Sting operations

Investigating fire, libel, loss, accident, damage or injury to a person or to property.

Securing evidence for use before a court, board, officer, or committee

Locating or recovering lost or stolen property and unclaimed funds.

Investigative Journalism : Tahelka.com and Wiki leaks are the much celebrated examples.

Big shopping centers and malls need in-house detective to prevent theft and pilfering.

Hotels use in house detectives

Cyber sleuths are needed for computer and Internet crimes.

Active awareness of new gadgets will keep a person on top.
Eligibility

Though you can join in a very junior capacity after SSC or 10+2, a graduate degree in any stream is always better.

You rise in the profession if you have related qualifications, like a degree or diploma in Forensic Science or Criminology.

The arena of crimes is indeed wide and equally wide range of skills is needed.

To become a computer sleuth, you need training in basic programming, hands-on experience in configuring and operating networks and relevant types of software such as mail servers, transaction systems, firewalls, anti-virus programs and system monitoring software.

For legal, financial and corporate investigation education in Business, law and accounting will help.

The common qualities required are alertness, good physique, analytical mind, innovation, dynamism and ingenuity as security threats differ in situations.

This is not a career for fainthearted. You need stamina, alertness of mind, an eye for detail visible or invisible, and inquisitiveness. It can be thrilling, challenging and dangerous.

Job Opportunities

Most Private detective agencies are run by retired CBI/ Intelligence/ Army/ Police intelligence officers.

They provide some training through their agencies to the new entrants in the profession.

Almost all agencies check candidates for their family background, education and work experience. Candidates are particularly screened for non criminal history and asked for authentic referees.
There is a growing need for all kinds of investigations; hence you are always assured of a job if you have integrity.

For a fresher in a detective agency, the monthly salary varies from Rs.4,000-Rs.9,000 which gradually increases in the course of time. In cases of family disputes the remuneration is quite high and varies from Rs.8,000-Rs.15,000.
Unusual Courses  All About Private Investigators

Scope Abroad: Almost all the major detective agencies in India are branches of registered agencies abroad. So the scope of finding a job abroad is also quite bright.

FUTURE AHEAD

Private investigation and detective services is a growing industry. The security situation is worsening and the regular police force is fully stretched. People also want to know more about their future spouses, and employees and many more issues without undue publicity.

Hence, detective and security agencies around the country are running successfully today. They also need more people with integrity who can work silently and keep their mouth shut later.

Training and courses

There are 2 main options for a private investigation program:

1. A proper college degree, in related subjects like criminology and forensic science.
2. A simple certificate or Diploma program only about investigation.

You have to decide which is best for you. Though you can always upgrade yourself later.

There are few institutes in India. Most of them give certificates and Diplomas. Courses are from one year to a week’s duration.

There are many distance courses as well as online courses. A distance course is a correspondence course, where the lessons are mailed to you. Online is when you pay and download the lessons from the net. You can also have online consultation with the tutor.

Most Detective agencies provide on the job training. This is where you earn while you learn.
How to choose Online Education

With Internet education has become easier and affordable. You can choose your own time and schedule. Still, you will need hands-on training to be really effective. For that almost all agencies take on trainees.

There are many online institutions, and there is an even chance of fraudulent sites. Before you shell out any money, check the credentials

1. with past students if possible.
2. If the site does not give any physical, stay away.
3. If the site is accredited with some known university it is a good sign.

Training

Practical training covers theoretical knowledge as well as practical work.

You are trained to understand and deal with cases of thefts, burglary, dacoity, kidnapping, extortion, murder, suicide, eve teasing, rape, molestation, fraud, embezzlement, forgery, spouse fidelity, undercover operations, pre-employment screening, sting operations etc.

Training consists of: crime-detection and use of investigative tools such as

- Hand-writing analysis,
- Finger printing,
- Handling of audio-video devises,
- Photography,
- Cryptographic products,
- Optical and other electronic instruments is part of the course.
- Patent trademarks and copyright infringement

There are many agencies, but I have listed only with valid webpage, and training program.
Eligibility

This is an industry where jobs are available at all levels.

For most routine and junior level work you may not need any qualifications to start as a trainee. For a security Guard level, you need only +10, and able body.

However a good standard of education plus experience in a field work (such as the marketing/sales etc.), is necessary if you want to advance in career.

It is better to specialize in a field, and for that you will need specific education.

For example, to deal with special jobs as computer, and account frauds you need knowledge of accountancy and computers.

You can contact local private investigators directly to find out about work shadowing opportunities and/or vacancies; check the Association of Private Investigators & Detectives (APDI) website for a list of investigators.

A driving license is usually essential for this work.

Following is a list of Institutes. All the links are correct working and secure as on November 2011.
